On December 1, 2006, Indiana American Water filed a letter of intent to file a rate request with the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission (IURC) and on December 5 filed a rate request case that, if approved, would change rates for water service in all the company's operating districts. In the filing, the water company requested an 17.78% rate increase for this District, citing ongoing infrastructure investments and increased operating costs as the main reasons for the request. If approved, the average customer's bill would increase approximately $4.93 per month, or 16 cents per day. Customers will still be receiving a gallon of water delivered to their homes for less than a penny per gallon.

Also included in the rate request is a proposed 19.67% sewer rate increase for Farmington residents. If approved, the average Farmington sewer bill would increase $10.97 per month or 37 cents per day.

Any change in rates will become effective only after a thorough analysis and review by the IURC, a process that will take approximately one year and includes opportunities for formal public and customer input.

On November 18, 2004, Indiana American Water was granted an overall rate increase of 0.4%.

From December 2003 through December 2006, the company will have invested more than $89 million in water system improvements throughout the state of Indiana for the replacement and installation of new water lines, meters, hydrants, and improvements at water treatment, pumping and storage facilities. Each one of these investments continue to preserve water quality, maintain reliability and continue to meet the needs of customers and communities served by Indiana American Water.

Indiana American Water rates are based on the actual cost of providing water service. The price paid by customers is driven by the ongoing infrastructure investment that the company makes to provide reliable, quality water service. Indiana American Water has also experienced significantly increased costs for chemicals, fuel and labor over the past three years which it is seeking to recover in the rate filing.

Many communities across the United States are facing the challenges associated with an aging infrastructure. According to the United States Environmental Protection Agency, to continue to ensure safe drinking water, the nation's water utilities will need to invest an estimated $274 billion over the next 20 years. This significant national need reflects the challenges confronting water utilities as they deal with aging infrastructure, some of which was constructed more than a century ago.

Today, water service remains a value for consumers in terms of utility service. With few exceptions, water service is the lowest utility bill consumers pay each month.

Quality service is a priority of Indiana American Water employees. We work hard to provide the highest level of service at reasonable costs each and every day. If you have questions about this brochure or our proposed rate request, call Indiana American Water toll-free at 1-800-492-8373.

Northwest Indiana

On December 1, 2006, Indiana American Water filed a letter of intent to file a rate request with the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission (IURC) and on December 5 filed a rate request that, if approved, would change rates for water service in all the company's operating districts. In the filing, the water company requested a 17.62% rate increase in the Northwest Indiana District, citing ongoing infrastructure investments and increased operating costs as the main reasons for the request. If approved, the average customer's bill would increase approximately $4.56 per month, or 15 cents per day. Customers will still be receiving a gallon of water delivered to their homes for less than a penny per gallon.

Any change in rates will become effective only after a thorough analysis and review by the IURC, a process that will take approximately one year and includes opportunities for formal public and customer input.

On November 18, 2004, Indiana American Water was granted an overall rate increase of 0.4%.

From December 2003 through December 2006, the company will have invested more than $89 million in water system improvements throughout the state of Indiana. In Northwest Indiana alone, the company has invested more than $18.3 million for the replacement and installation of new water lines, meters, hydrants, and improvements at water treatment, pumping and storage facilities. Each one of these investments continue to preserve water quality, maintain reliability and continue to meet the needs of customers and communities served by Indiana American Water.

Indiana American Water rates are based on the actual cost of providing water service. The price paid by customers is driven by the ongoing infrastructure investment that the company makes to provide reliable, quality water service. Indiana American Water has also experienced significantly increased costs for chemicals, fuel and labor over the past three years which it is seeking to recover in the rate filing.

Many communities across the United States are facing the challenges associated with an aging infrastructure. According to the United States Environmental Protection Agency, to continue to ensure safe drinking water, the nation's water utilities will need to invest an estimated $274 billion over the next 20 years. This significant national need reflects the challenges confronting water utilities as they deal with aging infrastructure, some of which was constructed more than a century ago.

Today, water service remains a value for consumers in terms of utility service. With few exceptions, water service is the lowest utility bill consumers pay each month.

Quality service is a priority of Indiana American Water employees. We work hard to provide the highest level of service at reasonable costs each and every day. If you have questions about this brochure or our proposed rate request, call Indiana American Water toll-free at 1-800-492-8373.
